

Daddy's Girl

By: Magan Walker

Robert Walker is my father, better known as "Pete." He is a unique, loving, and generous person. My father and I have a lot in common, and spend a good deal of time together compared to other fathers and daughters. One of the many things we do together is every Sunday during football season we will wake up early in the morning and eat breakfast at the Waffle House and order the same meal each time we go. Then at noon we are watch the football games for a while. We also like to go hunting together during the winter months. But truthfully I only go because it makes him happy, and that's what matters to me. Also, all year long (except during football season) we watch westerns on television. Our favorite is "Bat Masterson". I would say that my father and I have a pretty good relationship and spend a nice amount of quality time together. He is a very friendly and caring person, and works everyday as hard as he can for my family.

In February, softball is starting back and I will be spending even more time with him, because he will become my new softball coach. And I am actually looking forward to it because it is yet another thing that makes him happy that he can coach again. The reason is, is for the last few years he hasn't. He also used to coach my older brother in baseball, but now it's my turn. And this is the first year he has coached me so that he can help others and myself become better in playing. In summery, my father, you could say is like any other. But to me he's different. And I'm proud to say I am a daddy's girl.
